

Angela Kassube brings 16 years of legal, claims, coverage, and leadership expertise to her profession in the insurance industry. She began her career as an insurance coverage and defense attorney in Kansas City, Missouri. There, she worked at a national law firm, earned the honors of Missouri & Kansas Super Lawyers Rising Star in Insurance Coverage, and became a Barrister in the Ross T. Roberts Inn of Court Trial Academy for the Western District of Missouri. Since then, Mrs. Kassube performed progressively complex roles as an in-house claims professional. She is technically fluent in casualty claims and focuses on large loss exposures – both bodily injury and property damage. Mrs. Kassube is also a subject matter expert in construction litigation and specializes in additional insured tenders, contractual indemnification, and claims involving sensitive/specalty matters—such as assault and battery, Dram Shop liability, and sexual abuse and harassment. Her people leadership experience includes heading the litigation department of a regional non-standard insurer. In that role, she directly managed a staff of litigation specialists as well as oversaw complex litigation and coverage matters in the specialty claim group, trained claim staff on national coverage and claims handling protocols, and conducted roundtables to discuss large losses and time limited demands. She also led the Nationwide E&S/Specialty Diversity and Inclusion Activities Committee where she organized events and speaker series for the organization. More informally, Mrs. Kassube mentors and trains claims professionals both one-on-one as well as coaches students in litigation management classes. Mrs. Kassube speaks on topics regarding her casualty and coverage experience, especially litigation management, technical claims handling, and insurance coverage.

Mrs. Kassube is a graduate of Hamline University (cum laude) and Mitchell Hamline Law School in St. Paul, Minnesota. Mrs. Kassube is a licensed attorney for the states of Kansas and Missouri.
