

Nicholas Travis is partner in the firm's Miami office. He focuses his practice in the areas of professional liability, construction defect, first-party property litigation and extra-contractual claims.

Nick counsels a wide variety of insurance companies with respect to multiple lines of business as well as leading insurance brokers. He is a litigator who focuses his practice on the insurance industry, having defended numerous insurance companies in complex coverage disputes in both state and federal courts. His services include litigating complex insurance coverage matters, first party claims bad faith claims, construction defect claims and professional liability matters in addition to providing guidance to clients on industry related regulatory concerns.

Prior to joining Clausen Miller, Nick was an associate with a national law firm in Miami, Florida where he focused on commercial litigation and the defense of corporate directors and officers in liability and employment claims. He has represented businesses in class action consumer litigation involving fraud and statutory claims. Nick has extensive experience in counseling clients across a broad range of sectors in compliance matters in addition to developing litigation strategies designed to mitigate liability exposure and litigation costs.