

Christopher Flanagan is the regional managing partner of Wilson Elser's Boston office. His practice focuses on commercial and complex tort litigation, with emphasis on general liability, product liability, professional liability, employment practices liability, marine liability, trucking and transportation liability, and construction liability and defect, as well as insurance coverage and insurance coverage litigation, involving first-party property and third-party liability insurance policies.

Chris works with insured and self-insured businesses and property owners, helping to resolve their most complicated legal issues and defending them in litigation in state and federal courts in Massachusetts as well as in New Hampshire and Maine, where he is responsible for the firm's practice. Chris handles defense and coverage matters for both the U.S. and London insurance markets.

Chris develops strong client relationships through trust, responsiveness, reliability and attention to detail. His prior experience as an underwriter strengthens his understanding of the insurance business, from procedures to policy language, and contributes to his effectiveness with coverage analysis and as a litigator.
