

John C. Trimble is a senior partner with the Indianapolis law firm of Lewis Wagner, LLP. Over his 41 year legal career he has handled insurance coverage matters in State and Federal courts in nearly forty states, and has served as national coordinating counsel for property and casualty insurers. His coverage practice includes all types of property and casualty matters, bad faith defense, life, health, and disability, reinsurance, agent E&O defense, and regulatory work. He also defends complex and high exposure tort and business cases and class actions. John is a member of the American College of Coverage Counsel and a frequent teacher, lecturer, and writer on insurance law matters. He also frequently serves as a mediator of complex coverage and tort lawsuits, and enjoys serving as a settlement consultant for insurers involved in complex and high exposure tort, coverage and bad faith cases. He is a past president of the state defense bar of Indiana, a past president of the Indianapolis Bar Association, a past board member of DRI, and a current board member of the Federation of Defense and Corporate Counsel.
